Miraculous Escape Of Marine Aviator Is Year's Thriller

Santa Ana, Calif. (AP)—Marine fliers' wives get used to such things. "That would make a good movie," was the comment of Mrs. Dorothy Galer when informed of the almost miraculous escape of her husband, Col. Robert E. Galer, from a crackup in Korea. Galer went over the side of his flak-crippled Corsair fighter, but his foot caught in a cockpit strap. He dangled head down, managed to climb back into the plane, freed his boot, then dove again. This time the tail of the plane hit him, breaking several ribs. His parachute opened 150 feet from the ground and he landed within 10 feet of the burning plane amid exploding ammunition. He hid from enemy search parties. Later he was picked up by a helicopter, and it, too, was hit by anti-aircraft fire three times before Galer was landed on the deck of an American vessel. "It wasn't the first time for Bob," said Mrs. Galer last night. "He was shot down four times during the last war."

The plans call for construction of a quarter-acre storage pond about 1500 feet southeast of the new barn. At the same time, some dredging work will be done in the Brokenstraw creek north of the property where a large tree has lodged against a small island, catching debris floating downstream and causing a sand and gravel bar to build up. Removal of the bar will be made to prevent erosion of fields bordering the creek at that point.

200 Air Reservists In District To Get Job Classifications

Bradford Era: Some 200 Air Reservists in McKean, Potter and Warren Counties will receive a new job classification at an inventory to be conducted at the Air Force Reserve Armory in Salamanca starting Sept. 21. Reservists of Bradford Flight, 9307th Volunteer Air Reserve Training Squadron were acquainted with the new AF classification system at their regular meeting in local headquarters over the weekend.

Capt. N. T. Henretty, squadron operations and training officer, explained the new pattern which will apply both to officers and airmen and said "that all men in reserve will be reclassified and their old specialty service numbers will be replaced under the new code."

Declaring that the old MOS (military occupational specialty) system has been found inadequate, the Bradford officers said:

"The new system provides a pattern for the progression from low to high level positions and relates specialties to specific grades. Qualifications are specific and will aid in protecting the integrity of classification and will facilitate a planned program of procurement and training as well as improved personnel administration. In essence, the new system provides the basis for career progression as well as identification of individual abilities."

Capt. Henretty said successful classification depends on individual effort and cooperation and urged all personnel to personally appear for this survey at Salamanca.

The local flight also was addressed by T/Sgt. William Reese, squadron liaison airman, on the latest promotion policy received from the First Air Force.

"Eligible personnel will be considered for promotion only after meeting the latest requirements," he explained.

Sgt. Reese announced that men assigned to the unit could also obtain credit for time on duty in "Operation Skywatch" of the local Ground Observer Corps.

THE WORLD TODAY

By JAMES MARLOW
Washington (P) — A 15-man Chinese government delegation has arrived in Moscow for talks with the Russians and undoubtedly wants help. It seems a safe guess they went there to cook up misery for someone.

The party was headed by Chou En-lai, Chinese Premier, and included military, economic and diplomatic leaders. China, not being militarily self-sufficient, needs Russian help if it wishes to pretend to real power.

The specific reason for the visit may leak out, piece by piece. Or it may not be revealed until the Communists, Chinese or Russians, begin some new adventure, such as was tried in Korea.

While the Chinese need Russian help, the Russians need the Chinese. Particularly if they want to expand communism in Asia and at the same time keep the United States busy on two fronts: Europe and Asia.

Yet, if the Russians attempted to aid the Chinese militarily on a big scale, they'd be in a position somewhat similar to that of the United States: They'd be siphoning off supplies, as we do for our European allies.

The Russians can't afford to anger the Chinese. If the latter broke with Russia and made peace with the West, Moscow's world position would be badly shaken.

Such a break seems unlikely. The Chinese have their eyes on the rest of Asia. So long as Russia is a threat in the west, the strength of the West is split in two. So is its ability to stop the Chinese.

Yet, the Russians must have misgivings about the Chinese for the future unless they can find some way to reduce China to a puppet as they have done with Poland, Czechoslovakia and the other satellites.

With a population of about 350 million the Chinese now outnumber the Russians by about 130 million. But China is backward economic, militarily, and industrially.

It will be years before China can produce for war on the same scale as Russia. Until then China is not a full rival or threat to Russian survival.

FARM NOTES

Mulch the Garden—Mulch in the garden has five advantages: less work for the gardener, weed control, conserving moisture, addition of humus, and reduced cultivation. Robert Fletcher, Penn State extension vegetable specialist, says that straw, old hay, strawy manure, lawn trimmings, or other litter may be used.

Exhibit Machinery—One of the highlights of the big grassland field day at the Pennsylvania State College on Wednesday, August 20, will be the large machinery exhibit. There will be forage harvesters, mowers, rakes, hay crushers, balers and hay hauling equipment. Many of the machines will be used in field operations.

BLAZING ALONG—Whizzing high over the Bavarian Alps, the "Skyblazers," famous Air Force precision-flying team of Republic F-84 Thunderjets, make a spectacular sight in their diamond formation. Having amazed 10,000,000 spectators during their three years in Europe, they will be seen for the first time in the U. S. at the International Aviation Exposition in Detroit.

extension fruit specialist of the Pennsylvania State College, suggests using a cover crop in the raspberry patch. In dry weather, the cover crop makes relatively little growth, but when moisture is plentiful the cover crop grows vigorously, checks late growth, and encourages maturity of canes.

Reflect Roof Heat—To keep the poultry house cooler, use an insulated roof with a heat-reflecting covering, says Robert Lauter, Penn State extension poultry specialist. A good white roof covering is an aluminum asphalt paint prepared for the purpose.

Sow Ryegrass—It is time to sow ryegrass for a cover crop in the garden, reminds James O. Dutt, Penn State extension vegetable specialist. The cover crop will prevent leaching of soluble plant food and improve the condition of the soil.

Egg Price Higher—Large eggs command a much greater spread in price over smaller eggs as the supply becomes less in late summer, reminds F. H. Leuschner, Penn State extension poultry specialist. Encourage continued production by keeping the birds comfortable.

Announcement of Huber-Epley Rites Received Locally

Announcement is received from Mr. and Mrs. George Epley, 148 West Plumstead avenue, Lansdowne, of the marriage of their daughter, Marion Elaine, to Robert Evans Huber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Huber, of Shippensburg.

The ceremony took place at the Epley home on Saturday, August 16, at 2:00 p. m., the Rev. Dr. Earl Rudisill, cousin of the bride, performing the double ring ceremony of the Lutheran church in a setting of white roses and white candles.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina length gown of imported Swiss eyelet organza, modeled with a bolero and accented with scalloped eyelet trim about the hemline. With it she wore a picture hat and carried a white prayer book topped with a white orchid.

Dorothy Hale, of Lansdowne, as maid of honor, wore blue tulle and blue tulle sash and had a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. Poputis, Shippensburg, was Mr. Huber's best man.

The bride's mother wore a dark blue shantung suit and Mrs. Huber wore a blue and white ensemble, each with a corsage of white roses.

Following the ceremony a home reception was held.

Upon their return from a wedding trip in the Poconos, the Hubers will take up residence at 311 Burrows street, State College, where Mr. Huber will study for his master's degree in geography. He is a graduate of Reading High School and of Penn State. His wife is a graduate of Lansdowne High School and of Shippensburg State Teachers College.

Mrs. John Boholnick

Two well known young people of Ludlow were married at 1:30 p. m. Saturday in St. Michael's church in Sheffield, the Rev. S. P. Tretiak solemnizing a double ring service for Shirley Patricia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Lynn McKenzie, and John Boholnick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Metro Boholnick.

Altar decorations were white glads, pom poms and candles, and aisle pews were marked with white satin ribbons. Edward Sadvary, Olean, N. Y., singing "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother" and "Pans Angelicus", also assisted the priest in singing responses for the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and attended by Vivian Guaglianone, Johnsonburg, as maid of honor; Gloria Jean Fink and Joan Dolby, Clarion, as bridesmaids; Darlene McKenzie, sister of the bride, and Beverly Pastucks, niece of the bridegroom, as junior bridesmaids. Donna Kay Maxwell was flower girl for her cousin and William Latschaw was ring bearer. Best man was Eugene Kalin, with Melvin McCleary, Sam Luchers, John Kuban and Joseph Howanice as ushers.

Wearing white chantilly lace over satin, the bride had a half-hat attached to an all-silk illusion veil edged in matching lace and carried a semi-cascade of white roses. Her gown was fashioned with lace bertha about a tulle yoke, long sleeves and fitted bodice, the bouffant skirt of lace having scalloped edging and a triple tier of net ruffles at the hemline.

Her attendants wore ballerina gowns of aqua French net, with shirred bodices and bouffant skirts over taffeta. Each wore a net stole and carried yellow carnations to match their headbands. The flower girl was in white tulle accented with a blue sash and carried a small blue arm basket of Goldilocks roses and baby's breath. Carrying the rings on a lace pillow, Master Latschaw wore a white linen suit and wine bow tie.

Mrs. McKenzie chose red accessories and red roses with a black and white checked taffeta and Mrs. Boholnick wore a print gown, black accessories and pink roses. The bride's grandmothers, Mrs. B. T. McKenzie and Mrs. C. M. Slocum, wore aqua with wine and navy with white respectively, each with a pink rose corsage.

There were 165 guests for the reception given at The Lumberick from three until six, wedding bells, tapers and wedding cake carrying out a color thought of blue and white. Mrs. Lee Sandrock, aunt of the bride, served the cake and aides were Connie Ericson, Irene and Maxine Maxwell. Orrie Beebe played organ music for the reception.

After a wedding trip to Nova Scotia and the Prince Edward Islands, the couple will live at 1138 East 28th street, Erie, where Mr. Boholnick is employed as bricklayer for the Erie Forge and Steel.

Graduate of Ludlow High in 1947 and Clarion State Teachers College in '51, the bride was a member of Sigma Delta Phi and was listed in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. Following a period of teaching at Johnsonburg, she has accepted a position this fall in the Lawrence Park Junior High School.

Mr. Boholnick, also a Ludlow High alumnus, served with the Marines in World War II.

It's Too Late to Blame Men For Expecting Wives to Work

WOMEN'S problems don't stay the same. They change with the changing times.

One of the most noticeable differences in the letters that came to me when I started writing this column some 15 years ago, and the letters that women write today, is that 15 years ago women were complaining that their husbands didn't want their wives to work.

Today a great many of them are complaining because their husbands EXPECT them to work.

Women wanted to know then how to overcome their husbands' "silly, masculine pride" that made them ashamed to have a wife helping to earn the living for the family.

But in just a few, short years women have done such a good job of overcoming that "silly, masculine pride" a lot of them are complaining that their husbands expect them to hold down a full-time job and do all the housework, too.

WANTED MEN TO ACCEPT RIGHT TO WORK

IN a way, it is rather strange that women didn't foresee the possibility that, if they finally persuaded men there was nothing wrong in a wife's holding down a job and earning a pay check, the men would in time come to expect them to do just that.

And it is rather strange that they blame the men for such a normal reaction. What women wanted was for men to accept their right to work after marriage, but not to expect it.

But the change in the masculine attitude toward women working didn't stop at such a convenient point.

And because it didn't, a lot of women today are holding down jobs, not because they still want to, but because their husbands have come to expect them to.

It's a problem, all right. But it is one women brought on themselves.

Members of Warren Grange No. 1025 held a busy regular session Monday evening in their meeting hall, draping the charter for Mrs. I. G. Hyer, a recently-deceased member of the organization, and hearing Marga Schmitz, foreign student summering in Warren.

Miss Schmitz talked very entertainingly of her native Germany and answered many questions during the discussion period which followed.

To conclude the evening, refreshments were served by Lucille Johnson and Nellie Mills.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—In the first days of fall, cotton blouses with an autumn look are welcome in nearly any wardrobe. In autumnal colors, expertly tailored and given the additional attraction of being commercially launderable, such blouses are real standbys. They are equally available for both children and adults so that the small student can, if she likes, have a blouse much like the one her teacher wears. And they're done in fashion-right combinations such as toast and gray, yellow and charcoal, red and gray on a white background or blue and gray. The cotton is a fine, woven broadcloth. From the new Ship 'n' Shore collection, the little girl (left) wears a three-toned blue checked blouse with a convertible collar and action-back pleats. Her teacher (right) wears a yellow-and-charcoal gray plaid blouse with large buttoned pocket and action-back pleats. Both blouses are budget-priced.

president, with her secretary, Elizabeth English, and Bea McCann. Following a very interesting session, a visitation was made to Brookville Memorial Home and dinner was served by women of the hostess auxiliary to all post and auxiliary members present.

THIS BIRTHDAY WAS DIFFERENT: Until last evening about seven o'clock R. W. Norris, Sr., president of the R. W. Norris Co., was probably under the impression that his 83rd birthday anniversary would be just the passing of another milestone in his life, with no fuss or excitement. About that time a parade of friends and associates descended upon his residence at 307 Market street, to participate in an open house that had quietly been arranged by Mrs. Norris, without any advice or suggestions from the man of the house. Between the hours of seven and nine several hundred well-wishers stopped in to congratulate the honor guest and participate in the general good time the occasion inspired. Grape juice punch and fancy cookies were served with Miss Estelle Rowwell, of this city, pouring.

Choir Settles Down To Enjoyable Outing

The Warren Boy Choir group moved into Chautauqua last evening as planned and attended the last "Pop" Concert of the Chautauqua Season put on by the Chautauqua Symphony Orchestra in the Amphitheater, which they enjoyed very much.

The quarters provided by the Institution for use of the chorus until after their concert at 3:00 p. m. on Sunday proved to be very satisfactory and the boys have settled down for an enjoyable five day outing. John Powley, business manager, was a very busy man last evening getting details ironed out for the boys.

Of course, there will be work along with the pleasure, because Director Byron Swanson will have the boys in rehearsal sessions both morning and afternoon each day until concert time on Sunday.

Some Warren people are under the impression that the Boy Choir will only appear as a part of another concert, but it should be understood that they will present the entire afternoon concert. One of the special features of the program will be a piano duet by Miss Adelaide Swanson, their accompanist, and Walter Whaley.

All persons interested in going to Chautauqua on Sunday by chartered bus should call Nat Drake at the Chamber of Commerce office, phone 470, by Friday afternoon and if enough reservations are secured, a bus will be engaged for the trip at a big saving in transportation cost. The bus if chartered will leave Warren about 1:30 p. m.

POUGHKEEPSIE BEGINS FLUORIDATION SOON
Hyde Park (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt says she's afraid her remarks were a little out of date when she scolded nearby Poughkeepsie for its water supply policies.

"I'm afraid I talked from the past and not from the present," Mrs. Roosevelt said.

Her apology came after a protest from Poughkeepsie Mayor Robert E. Stevens, who lately challenged Mrs. Roosevelt's comment in her syndicated column "My Day."

She had written that in Poughkeepsie "we are so backward about our water system" that she doubted the city ever would give a thought to try fluoridation of drinking water to reduce tooth decay.

The mayor said Poughkeepsie already had contracted for equipment to begin fluoridation next month, and asked a retraction.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she had written a column that would explain the situation.

WESTPORT LANDING

By Homer Hatten

Chapter Three

IT was in Memphis that she rebelled. There was a night when André won far more than he had ever won before, and the next day, before he could lose his winnings across the same table where he had gained them, she forced him to pay them down upon this great house that stood serene and lovely in a wide lawn of grass and trees and flowers, its tall pillars and wide galleries looking out over the great rolling tide of the Mississippi.

André had been sullen and skeptical, ill at ease in such surroundings, but Sally had talked to bankers and cotton factors, planters and attorneys, businessmen and steamboat agents, winning their support and, what was far more important, their financial help and their assured patronage at the gaming tables and the bar.

There were still stupendous notes to be paid, but perhaps, if this last wild adventure of a buried treasure lost on the Santa Fe trail could be brought to fruition, she would win through to security, a bitter, hard-bought security that she could see and feel and taste in the beams and rafters and porticos and grounds of this great house above the levee.

She beckoned one of the white-jacketed Negro servants to her and sent him in quest of Blaine Shepley. He was an unusual character, she thought idly, as she waited for him on the landing. The youngest son of a St. Louis family whose holdings embraced banks and mills and lumberyards and whole-sale houses, Blaine Shepley could have found a safe and comfortable existence in any of the family properties, but there was some devil of restlessness and impatience in his blood that drove him away from the security that was offered and sent him west to become a Santa Fe trader. He was ripe for any enterprise, completely amoral and unscrupulous, an adventurer and a free lance to his battered finger tips.

He was smiling as he followed the Negro messenger across the wide lower hall. In many ways he was a handsome man, tall, dark-haired, with a skin the Western suns had burned into a dark mahogany. Always there was a reckless, challenging look in his eyes, the eyes of a man who would risk his last dollar or his life on a turn of chance and bid it Godspeed with a laugh and a careless oath.

HE bowed, half mockingly, as he stopped just below the landing where Sally stood. His long, plum-colored coat swung about him and his white ruffled shirt gleamed beneath the dark silken stock.

"I was more than honored when the boy said you wanted me," he said pleasantly, "and it's a double pleasure now that I see you. You're looking lovelier than ever." She smiled at him, quite consciously exerting the charm and loveliness that had made her a New Orleans belle. She was well aware that he was vital to their plans and if a smile and a whisper or a careless kiss would make him join them more readily, she had no intention of neglecting these weapons that were ready to hand.

"It was good of you to come, Mr. Shepley," she said formally. "My husband has a matter of business he would like to discuss with you and asked me if I would bring you."

She slipped her hand into the curve of his arm as they started up the stairway, quite pleasantly and cheerfully aware that the fragrance of her perfume and the soft whiteness of her shoulders had already begun to work their subtle magic in influencing him toward acquiescence in anything she might ask.

Her voice ran on as softly as bird notes as they climbed the stair, unhurried, untouched by the memory of the screaming, tortured man who sat waiting for them in the room above.

"I hope you will not be shocked when we join André," she went on. "There is a man with him who has been a— a little difficult. He drew a knife— André and was going to kill him, and André— She shrugged her shoulders helplessly. "He is so impetuous, so quick-tempered I am afraid he has been a little ruthless—perhaps even cruel."

She glanced up at Shepley from the corners of her eyes and found him smiling at her with a touch of mockery on his lips, as if he followed her meaning far beyond the actual sense of the words she had spoken.

"Yes," he said, nodding. "I'm sure I understand. Take it that this is one of those affairs that requires careful handling and a reasonable amount of discretion?"

She allowed her eyes to widen in admiration as her slim fingers tightened for the merest fraction of an instant upon his arm.

"You are clever, aren't you?" she whispered. "As you say, it does require discretion, but I think it might be very profitable for all of us."

"I'll be glad to hear it, then," he said.

She opened the door of the room she had left and preceded Shepley through the door. Regan was slumped in his chair, still bound and gagged. His face was set in a hair-mask of pain, and sweat ran down his furrows and dripped unheeded, on the heavy red wool of his shirt André had moved the candles back to the table and stood in the doorway enjoying the warm spring breeze, a long cheroot in his fingers, totally untroubled by the groans that fought their way up through Regan's bloody gag.

His face lit up with a smile of welcome as Sally and Shepley came through the door, and he strode across the room, hands outstretched, to greet them.

"Blaine Shepley!" he exclaimed heartily. "It's good to see you back with us. They told me you were here and I'd planned to look you up later this evening. However, this affair came up before I went downstairs and I thought it might be better if we talked up here."

Landmark in History

1722. FRANKLIN'S Birth-place and Province House. Boston, Massachusetts.

AP Newsfeatures

IN 1722, when the Royal Governor of Massachusetts stood on the balcony of the Province House on Marlborough (now Washington) Street, Boston, he had no idea that a youngster, born in 1706, in the little house across the way, on the corner of Milk Street, would do much, in the future, to deprive Provincial Governors of their jobs. This youngster was Benjamin Franklin, who would first become a printer's apprentice, then a successful publisher in Philadelphia and would climb the ladder of success until, in 1778, as American Ambassador to France, by statesmanship and tact, he would secure substantial aid from King Louis XVI, to help speed American Independence. Franklin lived before our "Four Freedoms" were known, but won success by using his four senses, sense of Justice, of Honor, of Humor, and "Horse Sense."

New Transformer for Better Service

The new transformers, replacing smaller ones, are of high voltage construction—oil and air cooled—and steps down the electric current from 33,000 volts to 2400 volts and 4160 volts. These transformers together with other necessary automatic control equipment in this station will serve the greater portion of the company's customers east of Conewango Creek and the Conewango Avenue area. This station also will have sufficient electrical capacity in case of damage to the normal feeder lines or a serious emergency to serve the South side of Warren borough including the Warren General Hospital which is normally served from the company's station at Eddy street which was recently revamped including additional electrical capacity and automatic equipment to serve in addition to the South Side the western portion of Warren Borough.

This work is in connection with Penelec's local improvement program. Recently completed was a new 33,000 volt Substation on Parker street near Lexington avenue and a similar station was constructed at North Warren along the Warren-Jamestown highway, and with the completion of the Car Barn Station and additional pole and wire lines, these stations will be interconnected by 33,000 volt lines resulting in a loop around Warren, thereby making for greater flexibility and improvement in electric service in the area. This loop is in turn tied in to Penelec's system at the company's generating station at Star Brick.

"All my life I've wanted to own a Buick"

Power Steering now available on Super as well as Roadmaster—optional at extra cost.

IT seems that owning a Buick is something that a lot of folks dream about—plan for—and finally do.

We say that because, so many times, they say so in words like those above.

Those words make us happy, of course—happy to know we sell a car which means so much to those who own it.

But they make us feel just a little bit sad as well—sad to realize all the years of fun such folks have been missing for no good reason at all.

For the fact is this:

If you can afford any new car, you can afford a Buick.

You can afford the thrill of bossing around that big Fireball 8 Engine that purrs forth a mighty flow of power.

You can afford the gas bills—as any owner of a 1952 Buick will tell you—because that high-compression, valve-in-head marvel gets a lot of miles from a gallon of fuel.

You can afford the extra luxury of a real million dollar ride—the silken smoothness of Dynaflo Drive*—the extra room and comfort and style that have put Buick popularity right up at the top of the list, next to the "low-priced three."

So if you want to own a Buick—there's just one thing to do:

Come in—pick the one of your choice—and let us show you how close the figure that goes on the bill of sale comes to what you'd pay elsewhere.

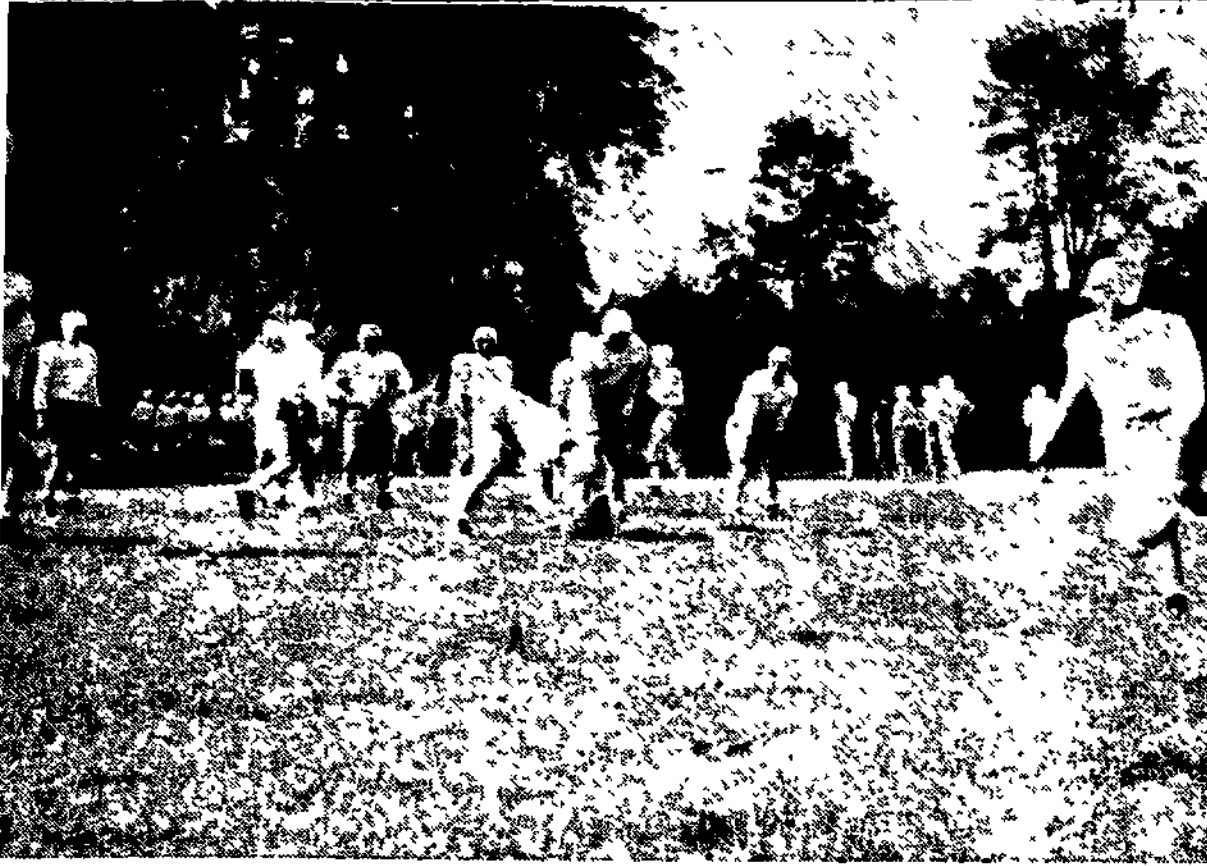

As we've said before, your first car can be a Buick. Why not take the Big Step now?

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice. *Standard on Roadmaster, optional at extra cost on other Series.

IT'S FOOTBALL TIME AGAIN in Warren High School, as can readily be seen in the above pictures. In the left hand shot a group of potential varsity material is running through a new play that has been outlined to them by Head Football Coach Fred Bell during the morning practice session. The other photo catches the new grid mentor and the small nucleus of the 1952 team that greeted him in his first year here. On the left is Dick Hegerty, letter-winning and on the '51 Dragon squad, and next to him is Toby Shea, a two-year varsity man, who will be a key figure in Coach Bell's backfield. Last year Toby was one of the area's hardest running fullbacks and plowed over for the TD that defeated unbeaten Jamestown and ended the Blue & Whites' season, as well as former Coach J. B. Leidig's career, in a blaze of glory. To avoid hot afternoons, Coach Bell is drilling his boys during the mornings until the opening of school on September 3. Assisting the new mentor with his duties are Norge Luvison, Joe Passaro, Joe Massa, Homer Barr and Loyal Briggs.

Who is the best pitcher in baseball today?
The folks of little Pottstown, Pa., point to their own Bobby Shantz, the pint-sized southpaw of the Athletics as the game's top hurler. On the other hand, the good citizens of Springfield, Ill., contend that their Robin Roberts, the pride of the Phillies, is the best in the business.

-1195 extra pounds of it!
—to cut your costs, increase your profits!

GMG-engineering brings you this great new Model 470 highway tractor that hauls up to 1,195 pounds more cargo than any other vehicle in the 45,000 gross weight class.

Here are the reasons why. It will pay you to study them carefully.

Sensational new engine. Model 470 is powered by GMC's new 145 h.p. valve-in-head "302" engine—the most powerful gasoline engine for its weight in truck history.

Maximum power-to-weight ratio. The "302" engine weighs as much as 500 pounds less than other engines of comparable power, due to new high efficiency design.

Highest Compression—7.2 to 1—exceeds any other standard gasoline truck engine, accelerates faster. Delivers full power at an easy-stroking 3,200 r.p.m.

More ten-miles per gallon—less dead weight in engine and chassis means more profit in every mile.

Highest payload capacity—upwards of one-half ton greater than any other tractor of the same GCW rating.

Price—the biggest surprise of all. Compare the price you have to pay for this pace-setting GMC against the field. Nowhere else will so little buy so much in a 3- to 4½-ton tractor.

Why not come in and see for yourself!

Independent Game At Sheffield Won By Warren Elks, 6-3

A three-run seventh inning rally and Dick Christensen's three-hit pitching gave the Warren Elks a 6-3 victory over Sheffield in an independent game played at Sheffield last night.

Warren drew first blood in the second with two scores, but Sheffield came back with three to take the lead in the fifth. Hitting Piehuta for eight safeties, the Elks tied the count with one in the sixth and won the game with the final rally.

Bud Terry led the Elks' order with two hits, while Sheffield's Slack had the only extra base hit, a triple.

Pedestrians and motorists alike, miss that convenient clock at the YMCA this evening or tomorrow morning. Remodeling work on the building made it necessary to remove the clock for awhile.

Like to see something different, something unusual? Drop by the YMCA this evening or tomorrow and view the work of the Jaycees in preparing a dormitory for the 125 Duke Band members. You'll get quite a thrill, standing in the gym balcony and viewing the sea of neatly made cots.

Meeting the mother of one of the Lane Ducks, last evening, we are inclined to say that she's got it all over any of the dates he has in Warren.

The Dixie band members will be "all around town" from Thursday night until Saturday morning.

Give these visitors a hearty "Hello, welcome to Warren!" and send them away with the same impression we all have of this fine town.

Pfc. Bob Atkins, USMC, concluding a leave at home, boarded last evening's train en route back to Cherry Point, along with the local contingent of inductees.

We have a note from former Borough Manager L. M. McConnell, now city manager of Council Bluffs, Iowa, in which he gives his new home address: 717 Forest Drive, Council Bluffs.

Abigail's party line was buzzing again today as the gals along the ledge made up car pools to get to Warren Friday for the Dixie Band parade at 6:15 and the concert at 8:15. But Abigail finally butted right in on old Mrs Snackenbach and that new resident named Fizzlebean who's lived on the hill only since '45, and told them she had an emergency call to make.

When she got us on the line she snorted out something that sounded like "You tell that upstart Band chairman, Al Buerkle, that I'll make all the squash sandwiches I want to and I'm going to take those Rebel musicians a whole basketful of yam muffins (yams to them, sweet potatoes to you)." Sweet potatoes to you, too, Abigail, and may the crop be plentiful!

John Dahler, Jr., joined his father and the other Jaycees in last night's work at the Y, and proved his worth. He did a man's work and no denying. Remember, there's another be tonight at War Memorial Field to dolly the bleachers into shape for the concert. It's at 7 p. m.

Deacon Dave Gibb and his group of young musicians were energetically practicing last night in preparation for their first "job" of the season—at The Spot, Saturday night.

Arnie Banals turned in another whitewash for Hornell, his Dodger teammates making it easy with a seven-run 7th inning against Batavia, winning 7-0.

Big Jack Dawson of Skaneateles fanned 11 men as Olsen blanketed Bradford, 2-0.

The other three games all offered class pitching. Bill Nagel, hurling no-run ball for Hamilton over the last seven innings, applied the stopper to the Corning A's, 2-1.

Talk on Highways Given Before Club

Gilbert Sanford, assistant superintendent for the Pennsylvania Department of Highways, Warren District, and himself a member of the Youngville Kiwanis Club, was the speaker at last evening's meeting of the club, outlining the work of the highway department locally. Mr. Sanford gave many statistics showing methods and types of construction of roads, their drainage, maintenance and such work as snow removal. One guest, Rev. Berger Halvorsen, of Naples, N. Y., was present for the meeting.

Following the affair, the program committee, consisting of Elton Barton, chairman, Edolph and Leo Johnson, J. Gordon Clark, and Ray Weber, met to set up the programs for the remainder of the year.

Highlights of the program will include a clambake in September, the date and place to be announced; the celebration of the first anniversary of the club, to which wives will be invited; and the annual Christmas party.

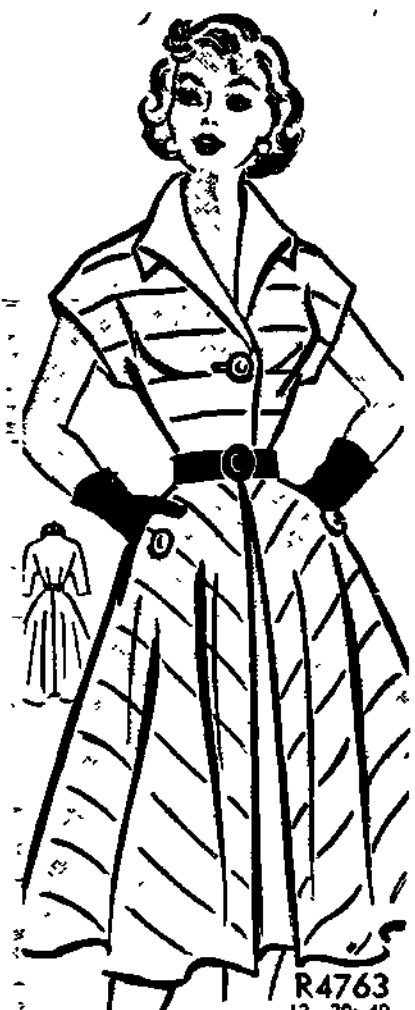

It was decided, also, to send three delegates and wives to the state convention in Scranton September 22, 23, and 24.

Steel Mills Finally Getting Back Into Full Production After Strike Impact

New York P.—The steel mills are finally getting back into full production. And the government is still trying today to pick up the pieces of the costly strike.

And steel users get permission today to buy steel a still more expensive way if they need it badly. This conversion steel will cost them even more than the new high prices formally approved by the Office of Price Stabilization. But buyers of conversion steel won't have to charge it off to the regular quota the government allots them.

INTERNATIONAL ROAD SIGNS—If and when they are universally adopted, you may be guided by these road signs when driving on the highway. The scientifically designed symbols are the results of some 20 months' work by a group of six experts appointed by the UN secretary-general to draft an international convention establishing a uniform system of road signs. The idea is to ease the way of travelers using highways in foreign countries. They can recognize the symbols even if they don't understand the language.

DEPARTURE OF 17 YOUNG MEN from Warren county on Tuesday night's eastbound train, for induction today into the Armed Forces at Harrisburg, was featured by stirring band music provided by a large representation of high school boys and girls who make up The Warren High School Commandos, shown above as they "toted off" round the baggage trucks at the railroad station. Passengers on the train will long remember the large crowd and the big band which they saw while the train paused in Warren, last night.
